EXCITING MEETING

Held on Monday to Authorize the Taking of Census of Blairmore—Only Two Voted.

TWO CHAIRMEN APPOINTED

Louie Theobald Amused Them All—He Did Not Own Property but He Paid the Taxes

A meeting of unusual interest, one that was full of mirth and extremely amusing from start to finish, was held in the old post office building on Monday evening last. This meeting was the result of notices issued some time ago calling for a meeting of the ratepayers for the purpose of having the census of Blairmore taken.

Sharp at twenty-three minutes past eight o'clock, much to the amusement of many and the great delight of a few, Mr. Louie Theobald rose from his seat and informed those present, who by the long waiting had grown impatient, that they should elect a chairman and proceed with the meeting. It was no use wasting time, declared Mr. Theobald. Mr. Thomas Kennedy, after viewing the crowded audience and being favorably impressed with the previous speaker's eloquence, proposed that Mr. "Coxie" be nominated Chairman, this was promptly seconded by Mr. John Fisher, and Mr. Theobald (as this is his right name) was duly elected to that important station and assumed his dignified office.

The chairman, with words that were full of meaning, thanked the audience for the unbounded confidence that they had in him and for this mark of esteem and approval. "I want the meeting to be quiet, regardless of creed, color, politics and sex," declared the chairman. "I am here tonight in the interest of the town of Blairmore; in the interest of this community and the universe at large." Here the quietude of the evening was broken and the chairman was little disturbed by some "greasy fingers" who allowed his pipe to fall upon the floor. The audience grew indignant at that careless individual and threatened to tar and feather the next person who dared to interrupt the chairman and otherwise disturb the peace and harmony of that vast gathering. Mr. Theobald, with his controlling influence, appeased the audience and addressing the person who was the means of that disturbed, ruffled and agitated state said: "You must either keep quiet or get out. You may have a little of the Irish blood in you but I will not tolerate any more of your confounded nonsense or bulltalkiveness." (Hear, hear) With this, the person spoken to made a hasty exit through a hole in the floor and the chairman resumed his seat on the stove amidst an ovation which caused the flies to leave their winter haunts and buzz around in wonderment and which caused the moving pictures to dance on the curtain in the adjoining building.

Here and There

Antoine Ernest Monie is the new premier and minister of the interior of France.

The Macleod Presbytery, in session last week end, by a vote of eight to one, declared in favor of church union.

At Calgary, on Friday last, John Fisk was found guilty of murdering Tucker Beach on May 21st, 1910, at Gladys, and was sentenced to be hanged at Calgary on April 18th next. T. M. Robertson, the self-confessed murderer's case will be heard later.

Bill Miner, the notorious train robber was arrested at Gainesville, Georgia, on Thursday last. He is one of the suspects in a train robbery which occurred at White Sulphur, on Feb. 18. He was sentenced to life imprisonment several years ago at Vancouver for robbing the Dominion Express on the C. P. R. In March, 1908, he escaped from the New Westminster prison by digging through the walls surrounding the prison brickyard. He may be taken to Kingston after being tried in the White Sulphur case.

Maybe the editor does not belong to your church or lodge or agree with you politically, says an exchange, but he is doing a lot more than you have dreamed of doing to keep your town on the map. And he can't keep it in glowing colors and lay Venetian red to do it with forever, unless he is a man of an independent fortune. If he's the right sort he won't ask you to subscribe or advertise unless you get 100 cents to the dollar, but he can sing the town's virtues in a much clearer tone if his advertising columns are well filled and the citizens occasionally help him by telling him the news instead of slandering him or trying to take business away from him because he does not happen to see things as some of them do.

Mrs. D. Welsh, mother of C. A. Welsh, minister of the champion lacrosse players of the world, died at New Westminster, B. C., last week. It was one good fortune to have known the late Mrs. Welsh and we sympathize with those who mourn their loss. Those human ties cannot be severed without a pang. Yet in such a death there is really no cause for grief. Her work was done and well done. She lived nobly and died peacefully. The stern Reaper found her, "as a shock of corn, fully ripe for the harvest." After a long, busy and useful life of 69 years, she died as she had lived—honored, trusted and loved. She reared her own monument while she lived in the hearts of all who knew her. Her life was completed if work all done and well done constitutes completion.

Another Store Building

W. J. Budd has just awarded the contract for the erection of a business building on Victoria Street to Fraser & Sinclair. The building will be on the east side of the store occupied by C. Hiscocks & Co and will be twenty-five feet wide, forty-five long, two stories and will have a large basement.

Will Celebrate

the 12th of July

Wellington Lodge, No. 2224, Loyal Orange Association, has decided to hold a big celebration at Blairmore on July 12th, next. Invitations will be extended to the Coleman and Hillcrest lodges to be present and to participate in what promises to be the greatest public demonstration ever given in The Pass. We understand that a committee has already been appointed to look after this celebration and to make all necessary arrangements for this event.

SANATORIUM NOW OPENED

And Is Ready for Business—It is Strictly First-Class—One of the Best in Canada

IS A CREDIT TO THIS TOWN

Erected at Famous Sulphur Springs and is Owned by the Canadian Coal Consolidated, Limited

The large sanatorium which was recently erected at the east end of Blairmore by the Canadian Coal Consolidated, Limited, throws its doors open to the public today.

The building is one hundred and fifty feet long, seventy-five feet wide, with a twenty-five foot centre front extension, it is three stories and has a full size basement. It is erected near the famous sulphur springs where a continual flow of the best sulphur water that has yet been found in Canada, so declare experts, oozes from the ground.

These springs are known almost all over the continent and the news that a large and first-class sanatorium has been erected near these springs, will be gladly received by thousands who are suffering from lumbago, sciatica, stiff joints, rheumatism, contracted muscles and many other such ailments, and who have long waited to have their troubles removed like Nauman of old when cured of his leprosy by the wonderful healing powers of the river Jordan.

The Canadian Coal Consolidated have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. P. E. Gimen as manager, and Mr. D. P. Paterson as secretary, of their sanatorium. Mr. Gimen was formerly manager of the Princess hotel in Paris, one of the leading hotels in France, while Mr. Paterson has had considerable experience in this line.

On the first floor is a large rotunda, nicely furnished in oak, early English style. All the chairs are upholstered, with leather covered seats. The open fire place has a very striking appearance and is very neatly and strongly constructed. The dining room, which is in the west end of first floor is very spacious and has a seating capacity of over one hundred. This room is also furnished with upholstered chairs which, with the tables, are in early English style. There are also two suits on this floor. These suits have each got a bedroom, sitting room, bathroom and are furnished in mahogany and early English oak. In the kitchen is every convenience for those who work. On the second floor are twenty-four bedrooms all beautifully furnished in early English oak as is also the large ladies' parlor. On the third floor are thirty-five bedrooms. In the basement is the bar which is very handsomely furnished in mahogany. Close to the bar-room is the liquor store. There are four bedrooms in the basement. There are also six tub and two shower baths connected up with the sulphur springs and with the ordinary water, hot and cold. In the basement are also the laundry and drying room, boiler room and pool room.

This building is lighted by electricity throughout, is steam heated, has running hot and cold water and has telephone connections in all the rooms.

The furniture, which is of the very best, was supplied by the Green's Nest Pass Hardware.

Everything is strictly in first-class condition and no expense has been spared to make this one of the best buildings of its kind in Canada.

It is the intention of the directors to not call it the Maurice Tilloy Sanatorium but to change it to some other name. The "Rocky Mountain Sanatorium" is considered by many to be a very suitable name but as yet no name has been definitely decided on.

Vaccination.

As "vaccination" is being considerably discussed just now by many in this province as well as in the province west of here, some information regarding its early use and the way it is being done in some other countries, may not be out of place.
Inoculation for small pox was first used, so far as we can learn, by the Chinese. Lockhart gives the following quotation from an old Chinese manuscript which is supposed to have been written in the eleventh century: "The ancients passed the knowledge of inoculation for small pox. It has come down to us from the reign of Chin-tung, of Ling dynasty, and was discovered by a philosopher. When the disease breaks out spontaneously it is very serious and often fatal, but when it is produced by inoculation it is usually mild and does not cause more than one death in ten thousand cases."

"In Persia inoculation is accomplished by scratching the forearm and rubbing into the slight wound after bleeding has ceased the pulverized scurf which falls from a small pox patient. The Ashanti negroes, according to Bowditch, inoculate in seven places in the arms and legs. The Moors practice the same method." The Siamese have the peculiar custom of blowing the scurf into the nose."

Editorial Notes

Mr. Theobald's speech is the talk of Blairmore.

There is one difference between Daniel Webster and Louis Theobald and that one is, the former did not live in the twentieth century while the latter still lives.

Bahama Islands are anxious to join Canada, and before very long they may be taken under the wing of this fair Dominion, which is the brightest national gem in the British crown.

A letter addressed "Canada, U. S. A." was recently received at Montreal from an English firm. Evidently, some of those blue bloods think that we are already annexed to the United States. That is truly a blooming, blasting crazy idea, "don-cher" know.

The B. C. Saturday Sunset says: "An old maid has just died in Duluth, who admitted that she was 106 years old. She must have been a wonderful woman, for, in all our long and varied career, we have never yet met an old maid who was more than 23 last birthday."

The latest fad, says an exchange, is to dub Mr. Rockefeller a billionaire. This is sheer nonsense. He is not a billionaire, and can never be one - a fact that becomes at once apparent if we contrast the difference between a million and a billion in seconds.
A million seconds is between eleven and twelve days; a billion seconds is over 30,000 years.
A billion is a million millions.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald said that he was surprised at Mr. Theobald for only speaking a few minutes. "Mr. Theobald," said the speaker, "is a man known throughout The Pass for his long speeches and high toned oratory, he is a man who can at times command attention and who can often influence those of his class." (Great applause and cries of "chairman," "chairman.")

Mr. Theobald said, "What a masterpiece of oratory.
What a magnificent speech.
What a powerful oration was that of Mr. Macdonald's. I am extremely sorry that my throat is so bad as to cause me excruciating pain and considerable discomfort whenever I speak." (A voice was heard to say "God help you if your throat gives you a greater pain than the one you give us." But Mr. Theobald considered the source and did not think it worth while to retaliate.)

Mr. J. A. Macdonald was surprised to find that this meeting was being held in the old post office instead of in the Mercantile hall as was advertised. He would do all he could to help Blairmore along and to advance the interest of the town but he would not support anything introduced at that meeting as he thought it was not being legally held.
Many more of Blairmore's citizens who would like to have attended the meeting were not present, because, after finding out that no such meeting would be held in the Mercantile hall, they did not know that there would be such a meeting that night.

Mr. H. E. Lyon said that the old post office was a part of the Mercantile hall and had been so ever since the first of the year, and he therefore thought that the meeting was being legally held.

There was then some doubt as to Mr. Theobald's right to act as chairman of the meeting. Of course, Mr. Theobald arose and with his usual fiery eloquence that made the room so hot as to not require any coal fire and that made frost appear on the heads of the tails, and with his weighty words which threatened to crush through the floor beneath, he explained his awkward position. He said that he had been approached by several of the most prominent citizens and had been asked to take the chair. He said that he had been told that he would make an efficient chairman and would act in that capacity to the dissafaction (or satisfaction, he said) of those present. He, thinking that the voice of those citizens were the voice of the people had finally consented to act.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald and Mr. T.
Kennedy said that Mr. Theobald was a ratepayer and was therefore the right man in the right place.

Mr. L. Dutil moved and Mr.
I. Loughhead seconded that Mr.
H. E. Lyon be chairman. Mr. Theobald said that he would vacate the position as chairman if the audience so wished it. He was willing to acquiesce to those present.

Mr. L. Dutil was elected secretary.

The following resolution, which was moved by Mr. J. Montalbetti and seconded by Mr. I. Loughhead was then put: "That we, the ratepayers of the village of Blairmore, in the province of Alberta, hereby authorize the village council to have the census of the said village taken with a view to buying the said village incorporated into a town." This was put by Mr.
Lyon, the second chairman, and was voted on by just the mover and seconder.

The meeting broke up at 9:30

Theobald. "As it is now, it re-

Observations By

Our Aeronaut

Nethinks there's going to be some thing doing for the ministers at either end of the trail that connects two towns east and west of Frank. Late hour trips at this season denote an amount of earnestness and the outcome is not doubtful.

The air up here is getting warmer, and it seems as though incorporation or some other warm material is condensing at some of the bigger mining towns. We hope such material will continue to enmesh, for forty below is not pleasant for me up here.

An ardent flagellant, who purports to be all that his title warrants, stepped too far out from Coleman on Saturday night and had to be escorted home by his better half in the waning hours of the morning. A blither ear and a puffed face are the remaining symptoms of his out-ing.

That short fairy of Frank, who visits Coleman once in a while to see a tall graffer there, had better keep on her gloves when out in public. I noticed Jack place the inseparable link upon her pointer Sunday night, and venture to think that if the old pals come to learn the fact there will be ructions in Maggie's home.

I don't like to tell all the interesting doings seen from our 'place, but among others last week there were a young lady of Bellevue and a gentleman of Frank entered into an engagement on account of which wedding bells will ring out on May 1st. Another young lady of Blairmore has broken her engagement with an eastern chap and has decided to share life with a local mechanic, and the nup lial day is not far off. Another is a young gentleman of a local mine office who intends to tow copper between a young beauty of New York state and a well-known grass-widow.

The rather unusual spectacle has been presented of a rather sharp decline in the approximate earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway during January, due doubtless to the smaller crop last season, while the price of the stock in the market is going up, and everybody seems bullish.

Mr. Rodolphe Forget, M. P., is organizing a bank called the Banque Generale du Canada but the word "Generale" will be dropped if a charter can be secured for one designated the Bank of Canada. Its capital will be $10,000,000 and of this amount the promoter states that French capitalists are willing to put up $7,500,000 and Canadians the balance. Mr. Forget leads the public to believe that his new bank will set the other banks a good example and that as a result there will not be such an outcry about the tight money market in future.

Taber Wins

By a score of 3 to 1 Taber defeated Coleman in a game of hockey played at the latter place on Wednesday night. The game was fast and was interesting from start to finish. It was witnessed by 212 hockey enthusiasts.

Storming the Taku Forts

(From the Narrative of Mr. John Deane, who, late with the British, was taken prisoner by the Chinese.)

It was a joint expedition against China, as prepared by Great Britain and France, and in August, 1900, the allies advanced towards Peking, which was invested and captured. Sir Hope, then the British commander-in-chief, as a special punishment of the Chinese, ordered the palace to be burnt, and this was done, the historic building being destroyed, after it had been thoroughly ransacked. The Chinese had captured a number of British subjects, none of whom, after being cruelly tortured, were later, after terrible sufferings as prisoners, were restored to their own country. As one of the results of the war, China was gradually opened up to trade with Europe. Mr. Deane, who tells the story, served in the 60th Rifles, now the Royal Rifles Corps.

Nothing the heathen Chinese strikes many people as a humorous plot, but, in fact, it was a very serious one. The Chinese, who have not waged war with any other nation, were, in fact, "Johnny" on his own soil.

I should think that about the worst in the world for campaigning. While I was in China, the war in 1900, I seemed to spend most of my time in mud, and when it was mud it was water. Put yourself, in mud, also, on some of the mud banks on the banks of the Thames, in London, when the tide is out, and you will get the idea of the sort of ground we had to fight over when we stormed the Taku Forts.

You might carry the idea a little farther, and fancy that the gloomy boulder, on the banks of the Taku Forts, and that you have been landed in boats on the mud and have to plant ladders against the walls of the forts. You would have the very good chance of being hurled back or having a spear or knife or sword thrust through you.

That was the kind of entertainment we had to put up with. For nearly five years ago, when we rushed to the assault, side by side with Frenchmen, and our country's flag on the first to plant our country's flag on the ramparts. We all wanted to get in, but as real victors, we were not to be so easily taken. The idea was to get to the forts by a series of trenches and ditches, and to get to the forts by a series of trenches and ditches, and to get to the forts by a series of trenches and ditches.

We struggled through the mud and water, waist-deep, over the left bank of the river, and we were not to be so easily taken. The idea was to get to the forts by a series of trenches and ditches, and to get to the forts by a series of trenches and ditches, and to get to the forts by a series of trenches and ditches.

We had scaling ladders made of bamboo, which had the ends of being a special sort of ammunition—a patent, I think, which was issued in water. That was a lucky circumstance for us, because our powder was so wet that it would not burn. The great thing was to get our way into the forts and drive the Chinese out, and to do that we had to depend mostly on our own numbers, and old steel. The firearms in those days were not very good for storming purposes. They would not carry far, and you could not shoot quickly with them.

I must confess that when I looked upon the Taku Forts I felt that it would be a good deal rather a difficult job. They looked tremendously strong and well armed, particularly the old forts, which we were to assault. I believe there were nearly four hundred men in each of the forts, and these Chinese had all sorts of firearms and spears and swords.

They had fearsome inventions, too, called catapults, which they were accustomed to throw at their enemies, and which we were to use. We knew, too, that they had an unpleasant and unsightly habit of hurling quicklime, in the hope that the dangerous stuff would burn the face and destroy the sight of the enemy. But that was all the horrors, both French and English, would rather face guns and steel than those barbarous catapults.

The Chinese had their own methods of fighting. They had a great deal of noise and show, and they had all sorts of devices for creating uproar and striking terror into the hearts of the enemy. They were quite gay with flags of all colors, mostly very gaudy, and takes altogether the sort of a Chinese festival. It was strange and uneasy as any man could wish to see. But there was nothing gorgeous or inspiring about the business. I never saw anything more depressing than that, regiments of mud and wet, and the men were quite out of us as we made our preparations for the storming.

We waited for the night, and slept in it. And as for little reptiles, they positively swarmed. After we had gone to bed, I was for the night, and I lay down to sleep as best I could. My rest was troubled. I had that sensation of oppression which so often comes over one in sleep. At last I pulled myself together and awoke. Then I wished myself asleep, or unconscious, or in any state that would save me from the discomforts of the night.

I remember the night, but not so vividly as I call to mind the place which we spoke of as the "Temple of Heaven." It was a building of a model, mostly of clay, of human creatures who were being punished with all the cruelty for which the Chinese were notorious.

Another young officer—Lieutenant Rogers of the 60th—was taken prisoner, and then occurred one of the most horrible incidents of the war. With the confidence of thought, Lieutenant Rogers reached the point of his capture. He was taken prisoner, and then occurred one of the most horrible incidents of the war.

When all was quiet, and the heavy rain allowed us to make a start, we began the operations of war by assaulting the forts. The Chinese had been in the lot and honor of the 60th to help considerably in the reduction of the forts. For we found a sort of secret passage, after struggling through an appalling double ditch which was really like a canal. I think we were fairly paralyzed the Celestials, because they believed as we got into Tang-tai, and left forty-five guns of our own. That was an appetizer for the Taku Forts, which were the great objective of our attention. Until they were reduced, nothing could be done. We wanted to be able to reach Peking, the capital, and it was as needful to smash the forts as it would be for an enemy who determined to raid London to break down the defenses of our chief city.

For one, we were thankful when the bugles sounded the advance, and the hosts of us, French and British, marched to the assault. I liked the French, and I liked the British. I believe that they were moved by a determination to do their best, and to do it to the glory of their country for military valor. Those were the days, you know, when we went to our storming. Mr. Robert Barr, the novelist, accompanied the Canadian expedition to the hunting grounds of the Iroquois Indians, and the redskins were so pleased with him that they gave him one of their chiefs, giving him the title of the "White-Horse."

TO OVERCOME BLINDNESS. The first remark on the point made by the American Medicine (New York) is that "deafness should not be regarded as a rule, as it is in nature's signal to stop work." But there are times when the worker must go on, sleep or not, and so the writer, after work in favor of morning work as against night work, tells the tired reader how to refresh his weary brain. He says:

SAVING A SHORT CROP. Owing to the great heat this season, accompanied in many districts with a lack of moisture, a great deal of grain will have very short straw, making it very difficult to handle. The short straw will shake out of the sheaves in the moving, and a comparatively large quantity of the grain will be a total loss. A means of overcoming this difficulty has been found, and the machine which promises to save the grain which would be otherwise lost has been put on the market.

It is claimed for this machine that it saves labor, it stacks the grain, making it more solid for storage, and leaves all grain shaken when the binder stops. It has further advantages. It cuts all kinds of binder, and does away with the bundle carrier. It takes away all draft from the binder, and operates at a low speed. It is made by the Agricultural College in Wisconsin, and it is sold direct from the college.

Coleman Notes

The Coleman Lodge, No 36, I. O. O. F., will give their annual ball in the opera house tonight.

Arthur Benson has returned from Michel and has resumed his old position as chief printer in the local printing office.

Owing to scarcity of brushes, the scrubbing party which was to have taken place on Saturday, was postponed for a week end.

Coleman Lodge, No 36, I. O. O. F., have been notified to vacate the building now occupied by them at the end of March, when it will be occupied by the Goodbye Hardware Co.

Harry J. Wright, formerly mechanical superintendent on the Slove-Canadie but now sub-editor on the Miner, was in Frank on Monday. During Mr. Wright's absence the Miner was left in charge of Mr. Love.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Mrs. Hyslop, the Dominion organizer of the W. C. T. U., was in town last week for the purpose of starting a local branch. But because it was on the same day on which the scrubbing party was to take place at the "Miner" office, the women did not get home in time to clean and prepare themselves to attend a place of worship, and consequently there is no local branch of the W. C. T. U. here.

The work of helping the world forward happily does not wait to be done by perfect men.

Large coal mines from Calgary. Large coal mining centre. The West Canadian Collieries, Limited, mines are situated here, and have a daily output of 1,500 tons and employ 800 men. High grade cement and lime plant, employing 170 men. Has brick plant, telephone, lumber yard, three hotels, bank, 5 general stores, clothing store, millinery store, newspaper, 3 livery stables, 2 meat markets, barber shop, 3 restaurants, confectioner, blacksmith shop, 3 pool rooms, photographer, doctor, shoemaker, 10 painters, undertaker, clothing and dry goods store, drug store, contracting and building firm, 2 hardware stores, flour and feed store, 3 bakeries, sanitarium hotel, electric light, large saw mill.

Mrs. Hyslop, Dominion organizer for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, delivered an address in the Central Baptist church on Thursday evening last. A large crowd was present and listened attentively to what was considered the best piece of oratory ever given by a lady in that church. She dwelt at some length on the work of the W. C. T. U. and cited several instances in which that body had done considerable to raise the fallen, lighten many a heavy and sad heart and cause peace and happiness to return to their homes. During Mrs. Hyslop's stay here she organized a branch of W. C. T. U. in Blairmore.

A tart temper never mellows with age, and a sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener with constant use.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by dealers everywhere.

LILLE NOTES

Lille boasts of a yard engine these days.
